South-Carolina GAZETTE.

From TUESDAY February 26th, to TUESDAY March 5th, 1754.

LONDON, Dec. 5.

IN one of the laſt memorials diſperſed at Paris and Pontoiſe, by the grand chamber of the parliament of Paris, we find, that the prince of Conti, as a mediator between the king and the parliament, did propoſe to them, among other things, to ſend a deputation to his majeſty, in order to petition him for a recall of the diſperſed chambers; which propoſal was rejected by the grand chamber for the following reaſons, which redound much to the honour of thoſe inflexible patriots.

1. Becauſe it would be, in ſome meaſure, beging a pardon for magiſtrates, who, far from being culpable, remained faithful to the king, and were become victims of their loyalty.

2. Becauſe thoſe ſame magiſtrates, who find themſelves honoured by their diſgrace, had earneſtly deſired the gentlemen of the grand chamber not to demand their recall, and to apply themſelves ſolely to affairs relating to ſchiſm.

3. Becauſe, when the parliament was tranſferred to Pontoiſe in 1720, and diſperſed in 1733, they never deſired to be recalled, but patiently and reſpectfully waited 'till the king was pleaſed to order it of his own proper motion, when he had judged the tranſlation or exile long enough.

4. Becauſe to paſs a vote for requeſting the return of the exiled brethren, would be, on the part of the grand chamber, to exceed the limits preſcribed to it by the preceding reſolutions and arrets, which left it at liberty to act againſt ſchiſm only, and enjoined it a full and abſolute inaction in all other matters.

5. Becauſe if the grand chamber ſhould petition for the return of its brethren, the king [illegible] would [illegible] the preliminary condi[illegible] they ſhould more and more incur the [illegible] diſgrace. Conſequently, ſuch a requeſt [illegible] prudence be made.

London, Dec. 6. Letters from Hamburgh, and ſome other places in Germany, acquaint us, that they have within theſe ſix weeks had great remittances, payable to the agents of certain courts, which ſeems to juſtify the report, that a new alliance has been lately concluded.

By a private letter from Berlin we learn, that ſeveral privy councils have been held ſince the return of his Pruſſian majeſty to Potzdam; and that from this, joined to other circumſtances, many penetrating people are led to believe that ſomething of great importance is in deliberation; but they are too prudent to venture any conjectures on that head.

If our correſpondent at Paris is not miſinformed, one of the Counſellors of the parliament has employed a great part of his time, during his exile, in penning a hiſtory of that illuſtrious body; from whence it will appear, that it is coeval with the French monarchy, and that the two firſt races of French kings had the higheſt deference for its authority, even in points of the greateſt conſequence.

St. James's palace will be thoroughly repaired, and ſome alterations made therein, the enſuing ſummer; after which, it is ſaid, ſome propoſals already preſented for building a magnificent new palace, will be taken into conſideration.

London, Dec. 8. By private letters from Dublin we learn, that a perſon employed in a place of great truſt, was, on the 23d paſt, expelled the hon. houſe of commons of that kingdom, for miſapplying the public money.

The lords of the admiralty have appointed Capt. Evans, commander of the Rye man of war.

And Capt. Rawlins commander of the Raven man of war; both of twenty guns.

And Captain James Douglas, commander of the Porcupine Sloop.

According to private letters from Copenhagen, perſons of penetration are divided in their ſentiments as to the deſtination of the ſquadron that is to be equipped in the ſpring, which ſome ſay will be ſent into the Mediterranean, while others imagine that it will be employed nearer home. Even from ſome circumſtances it may be collected, that a fleet of obſervation will make its appearance this enſuing ſummer in the Baltick.

Our letters from Francfort intimate, that it is highly probable the ſo long expected election of a king of the Romans will take place next ſpring at fartheſt; that the diet for that purpoſe will be held at Augſburgh; that the emperor will reſort thither upon the occaſion; and that every thing will be conducted with the utmoſt dignity and ſplendor.

London, Dec. 11. The laſt advices from Modena ſay, that the departure of his Serene highneſs for Milan is ſtill farther poſtponed on account of the ſeverity of the weather, that letters of the laſt conſequence have been ſent to the hereditary prince at Vienna by a cabinet courier; and that ſecret councils are held frequently on the preſent ſtate of affairs, and on the moſt effectual methods of giving a certain court the ſatisfaction ſhe expects.

According to ſome letters from Pruſſia, the Auſtrians recruit with greater warmth than ever, and, as they give very high premiums, they have enrolled a great number of the moſt ſightly youths in that country. The Pruſſian recruiting officers are likewiſe very buſy, though it is known that their corps are already more than compleat.

Stockholm, Nov. 20. The Marquis de Havrincourt, ambaſſador from France, has lately received conſiderable remittances from his court, which, 'tis ſaid, are to be employed in procuring more ſhips to be built in this kingdom for the ſervice of his moſt Chriſtian majeſty.

Paris-a-la-Main, Dec. 7. Yeſterday letters patents were publiſhed in form of declarations, authoriſing the ſollicitors of the parliament to execute their functions for the royal chamber in the ſame manner as they uſed to do for the parliament, and enjoining them to do all the buſineſs which ſhall be required of them, on pain of their being removed from their employments.

London, Dec. 13. They write from Stockholm, that the Senate have under conſideration ſeveral methods for drawing German families of the Lutheran religion into Finland, which it is thought would have an extraordinary good effect in promoting the improvements already ſet on foot in that province, and introducing new ones which might turn to the advantage of the kingdom in general.

Our correſpondent at Paris informs us, that the anſwer given by the chancellor to the gentlemen of the parliament, on their application in favour of [illegible] members, was [illegible] that there [illegible] ſhould concern [illegible] the exerciſe of their own [illegible].

London, Dec. 14. At a late meeting of the royal ſociety, the annual oration of Sir Godfrey Copley, Bart. (the gift of which, on the death of Sir Hans Sloane, devolved upon the preſident and council) was, in a gold prize medal, adjudg'd to Benjamin Franklin, Eſq; of Philadelphia, for his uſeful diſcoveries in electricity, and delivered to be tranſmitted to him by the care of his worthy friend Mr. Collinſon, fellow of the ſaid ſociety.

We hear the earl of Albemarle has received for anſwer to his memorial againſt the fortifying Dunkirk, that they will ſtrictly adhere to treaty; but at the ſame time inſiſt upon a right of fortifying it on the land ſide for their own ſecurity.

Archangel, Nov. 4. We are here in the utmoſt confuſion imaginable. A violent ſtorm roſe in the evening of the 27th ult. which continued all night. In the mean time a fire broke out and burned with ſuch rapidity it is ſcarce poſſible to expreſs; it will be beſt comprehended by its dreadful effects, which from a careful inſpection appears to be 609 houſes, including thoſe demoliſhed 974; 230 warehouſes and ſhops, 14 mills, 11 public manufactures, a public bath, 3 vaſt baking-houſes, 7 taverns, and a ſalt-work. The loſs is immenſe but not calculated as yet.

Moſcow, Nov. 12. We made no doubt of the court's continuing here during the winter; but the dreadful accident that has happened this day gives us too much reaſon to fear the contrary. A fire broke out in the afternoon in the offices of the caſtle, which has ſeized the apartments of the court. We have great hopes it will be extinguiſhed, tho' it has done already a great deal of miſchief. The poſt going out before any thing can be known with certainty occaſions this confuſed account, and will no queſtion create many contradictions in the letters from hence, as it is impoſſible any diſtinct relation can be given of a misfortune 'till it is entirely over and people recovered from their fright.

Paris-a-la-Main, Dec. 10. On Friday morning the chancellor being aſſembled, as ſoon as the lieutenant civil appeared, all the counſellors roſe up to go away. At which this magiſtrate, being aſtoniſhed, aſked the reaſon of their doing ſo; but they gave him no anſwer, and retired in ſilence. However, they left in their office the following declaration. "The company, conſidering the impriſonment of one of their chiefs, the reſtraint upon the liberty in giving their ſuffrages, and the preſent miſfortunes which they labour under, are ſo fearful of their own ſafety, that they are incapable of providing for the ſecurity of their fellow citizens, or their wives, they therefore thought proper to withdraw." They left the lieutenant civil alone in the chatelet.

Rome, Nov. 29. Two days ago the Pope made the grand promotion of 16 cardinals, in which are included the nuncios of Vienna, Paris, Madrid, Liſbon, and the governor of this capital. The general of the capuchins is dead in the 73d year of his age. Some very fine pieces of ſilver plate have been lately made here for the duke of Modena. It is ſaid that the court of Naples, in caſe of any new troubles in Italy, has determined to remain neuter.

Hague, Dec. 15. We learn by an expreſs juſt arrived, that the laſt accounts of the terrible fire at Moſcow, were but too true. The greateſt part of the new palace is burnt to the ground, with an immenſe quantity of rich furniture; the wardrobes of the grand duke, of the high chancellor, the count de Beſtucheff, the vice chancellor, count Woronzoff, and ſeveral other miniſters, to a prodigious value. The fire at Archangel deſtroyed 300 goods and merchandizes of different kinds, to the value of two millions of rubles; the loſs in both places has fallen entirely upon the Ruſſians; for the foreigners, having taken the precaution to build with ſtone, eſcaped.

London, Dec. 18. We hear that orders were lately ſent to Jamaica, to repair ſuch of the fortifications, &c. and belonging to that iſland, as ſhould ſtand in need thereof, and for the continuance of the men of war cruiſing in thoſe ſeas 'till further orders.

Some freſh complaints have lately arrived from Jamaica, and other parts of the Weſt Indies, againſt the Spaniſh Guarda Coſtas, on account of their having ſeized ſeveral veſſels without any lawful reaſon whatſoever, in conſequence of which freſh inſtructions were lately forwarded to our miniſter at the court of Spain, on the ſubject matter of the ſaid complaints.

Madrid, Nov. 26. Many provinces in this kingdom, particularly thoſe of Caſtile, are ſtill in the greateſt want of rain, for which reaſon the king, to prevent as much as poſſible the miſeries that threaten his people, has ordered [illegible] proceſſions of [illegible] to be brought up to the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] for this [illegible] [illegible] people at a moderate price.

London, Dec. 20. This day his majeſty went to the houſe of peers, and gave the royal aſſent to the following bills, viz.

To a bill to repeal an act of the 26th of his majeſty's reign, intitled, an act to permit perſons profeſſing the Jewiſh religion to be naturalized by parliament; and for other purpoſes therein mentioned.

To a bill for the better ſecuring to conſtables and others the expences of conveying offenders to gaol, and allowing the charges to poor perſons to give evidence againſt felons.

And to ſeveral naturaliſat on and other bills.

Some penetrating politicians at Petersburgh ſeem to be not a little inclined to political vapours, and ſuſpect that the public tranquility in the North may be ſooner troubled than is commonly imagined, for this ſage are too cautious (as it is a little dangerous there to affect this kind of knowledge) to aſſign any direct reaſon; but from certain hints dropped at ſeveral times, we collect there is another court in the world where the ſame kind of meſſage has been lately delivered with that carried by count Monaſon, and may poſſibly not without effect.

London, Dec. 22. Both houſes of parliament are adjourned to Monday the 14th of January next.

Laſt night Governor Clinton came to his houſe in Dover-ſtreet.

It is now reported with great confidence, that his majeſty will not viſit his German dominions this ſummer.

We hear that a certain perſon concerned in the lottery, who is charged with acquiring ſome thouſands by unjuſtifiable meaſures, contrary to the deſign of the act, will be obliged to refund; and that the money will be diſtributed to the poor debtors in the priſons of this kingdom.

Our laſt letters from Hamburgh inſinuate, that hops are actually taking in order to proceed to the election of a duke of Courland in the ſpring, which honour, it is believed, will be conferred on a prince of the houſe of Saxony; and that in conſequence of a certain marriage, which is alſo mentioned, it will be found from moſt of their diſcoveries which hitherto have obſtructed it, and with which obſtacles it might hereafter be attended.

Our correſpondent at Paris informs us, that people are very well pleaſed with the promotion of a perſon of diſtinction, who obſerving, with great attention, the grounds pleaded for the ſeverity of the late chamber of juſtice, and thoſe that ſtruck the perſons of their own private property, wrote this anſwer to a perſon of high rank, who praiſed him for his opinion, that as he never read [illegible] day of the poets of a marriage happened

Mean

Man and Thomas, has doubted the use of this contrivance might be thought illegitimate.

Portsmouth, Dec. 14. Last Monday every one of the Councillors of the Chandeliers received a letter de cachet which ordered them to assemble themselves in their Chamber where they accordingly met, and found, in the place of their meeting, letters patent, which ordered them to re-assume their functions; they heard these letters read and kneeling, after which they sat and deliberated upon what was in this case to be done, and determined that they would begin to do no business till their brethren under confinement were set at liberty. They afterwards resolved upon casting a remonstrance to be drawn up in order to be presented to the king, and appointed two of their members to draw up the articles of such remonstrance, and to make report thereof to the company; that when this was done, it should be carried to the king: That the Lieutenant-civil should be charged with a message to his majesty, to pray an arrest of council, which should render ineffectual that of the chamber royal, whereby M. Geoffe de Voisin had been decreed to appear personally, liberty to M. de Montcher, who was imprisoned in the Bastile, and the revocation of the lettre de cachet, which was the cause of Mr. Miller's absconding, and to assure his majesty, that they would not do any business until he had ordered that their demands should be complied with. It's allowed that next Tuesday they will have an answer from the court.

London, Dec. 27. Letters from Lisbon of the 10th advise, that Colonel Hopson arrived there some days before from his government of Nova Scotia, and intended to sail for England, on board his Britannic majesty's ship the Torrington, in less than a fortnight.

We hear that the right hon. the lord Barrington will be appointed governor of New-York, in the room of Sir D'Anvers Osborn, deceased.

We hear that the cutting all the cross-roads thro' the Highlands of Scotland will be completed the ensuing summer, and that provision will be made next session of parliament for keeping the same in repair, and for building two forts near the said roads, where a garison will be kept for the better preventing any trouble from that quarter upon any occasion.

The HUMOURIST. No. X.

Arma virumq; cano. VIRGIL.

IN my last, I just lead the Reader into the Scene of Action: I come now to be more explicit, as well as the ingenious Poet under Consideration, and shall conclude my Remarks in the Paper of this Day.

'But there is a House,
'Just on the Hill Edge,
'And Mathew's House hard by it.

Is it possible for any Tongue to express more Simplicity, or to discover a more natural Ease of Delivery than the above Lines? Nothing can give us a finer Idea of Mathew's House but the Sight it. There our Poet strongly conjectures, that this Dragon was a Witch; I believe 'tis the first Time any Genius ever stumbled upon so singular a Sentiment; and then the burning Snivel he cast into the Well, is so beauteous and so exquisite a Comparison, added to the Consideration of its being the first Tho't of the kind either amongst ancient or modern Writers, that a prime Genius would not scruple to have purchased it at the Expence of his most correct Performances.

Our Poet, speaking of this Snivel in the Well, informs you of its Effect,

'Which made it look
'Just like a Brook
'Running with burning Brandy.

Does not this Piece of Imagery put any sensible Man in Mind of Snap-Dragon? Every Child in the Town will discover this Beauty. The People of these Days (the lower Class I mean) may perhaps be of Opinion, that burning Gin would be a brighter Expression than that of Brandy, but then they are not apprised of a manifest Error, viz. that the Verse would not run so sweet as in the present Case, and then it might fairly be said to be a Specimen of what Smift calls the Art of sinking in Poetry.

We have a charming Description of our Hero's excellent Qualities, far superior to what Ajax ever had Pretension to boast, or Marshal Saxe to assume: He made nothing of swinging a Horse to Death and eating him: The Country People of these Days, who had with Christian Patience submitted to the Power of priestly Government, began to entertain most sanguine Expectations of our Hero's Appetites, and undertook him in one of the greatest Strokes of Oratory, that for its Singularity I cannot omit transcribing.

'These Children, as I told, being eat,
'Men, Women, Girls and Boys,
'Sighing and sobbing, came to his Lodging,
'And made a hideous Noise.

Observe the Harmony.

'O save us all,
'Moore of Moore-Hall,
Pope never mourned so delightfully in his Life.
'Thou peerless Knight of these Woods,
'Do but slay this Dragon,
'He won't leave us a Rag on,
'We'll give thee all our Goods.

He won't leave us a Rag on! Is it in the Power of Man to write a more pathetic Line, or one more forcible than the last? But the Hero generously refused the Offer, and only asks for a smiling Girl about the Mouth.

The armed Terror with which he stalks into the Field is well express'd, being beset, as he informs us,

'With Spikes about,
'Not within, but without.

Thus has our Poet excelled in the descriptive Part of Poetry, and the following Stanza is a full Proof of his Talents for the instructive.

'It is not Strength that always wins,
'For Wit does Strength excell,
'Which made our cunning Champion
'Creep down into a Well.

This puts me in Mind of these old Lines,

He that
——— ——— ——— ——— runs away,
May live to fight another Day;
But he that is in Battle slain,
Can never rise to fight again.

However we find, by what follows, that the Well had near proved an unfortunate Asylum for our Champion; for you must know, that this Dragon was hugely given to Drinking,

'And as he stoop'd low,
'He rose up, and cry'd Boo,
'And hit him in the Mouth.

This was the Præludium Martis, so far the Incident was of Use to the Combatant: I omit the Speeches upon the Occasion, in order to make room for that extraordinary one of the Dragon just before his Exit.

'Then his Head he shak'd,
'Trembled and quak'd,
'And down he sat and cry'd;
'First on one Knee,
'Then on Back tumbled he,
'So groan'd, kick'd, s—t, and dy'd.

Philadelphia, Dec. 27. Last week was kill'd by Jacob Viney, of this city, butcher, the largest ox that ever was raised in this province, or perhaps in America. His four quarters weighed 1446 pounds; the tallow upon his entrails 251; his hide was but light in proportion to his other parts, being only 120 pounds. He was justly supposed to weigh, when alive, 2200 pounds, being full 17 hands high.

Monday night, and Tuesday morning last, we had as violent a storm of wind here, with rain, as has been known for some years past. When it began, the wind was at south-east, but towards the morning shifted to south-west, and blew a meer hurricane for some hours, when it veer'd to the north-west, and moderated. The damage done by it to the outward bound shipping (come to our knowledge) is, the Pembroke, Cowan, for Swanzey, ashore near Chester; the Friendship, Seix, for South-Carolina, and the Rebecca, Lowther, for Barbadoes, both ashore at or below New-Castle. The Ships Tyger and Alexander, Captains Burrows and McFun, rode it out.

Annapolis, in Maryland, Jan. 3. Within a few days past, four women all in one neighbourhood, and not far from town, were delivered with ten children, two of them with three each, and the others with twins.

Philadelphia, January 22. The Pembroke, Cowan, and Rebecca, Lowther, that were drove ashore in our river by the storm of the 24th and 25th ult. are got off, and ready to proceed on their voyage: But the Friendship, Seix, who was also drove ashore at the same time, is brought up to town for some repairs, being badly cut by the ice.

New-York, Feb. 11. By Captain Gifford from Halifax, we have the following intelligence: That the day he arrived there, Col. Monkton, with two Sloops, and 300 soldiers on board, convoyed by two of his majesty's Snows of war, were dispatched to Lunenburgh, a place about 25 leagues west from Halifax, to quell a small insurrection of the German settlers there, where they soon arrived, and found the place in very great disorder. Capt Gifford sailed from Halifax the 8th ult. but the wind coming to south east, he put into Lunenburgh the next day, where the commander of that garison gave him the following account, and reasons for the late disturbance they had there: The French, ever studious for the welfare of Great-Britain, it seems, got one Huffman to infuse notions into the Germans heads, that they were ill used, and that the king of England not only allowed them three years provisions, but cloaths also, and that they were deprived of many privileges pertinent to British subjects, which he could make appear by letters from England: They often sollicited for copies of these letters, but for various pretences, were as often denied; which so enraged them, that they seized Huffman, and, notwithstanding all that the commander of the place could do to the contrary, confined him, and by torturing, made him confess things for truth, which never entered into the thoughts of the gentleman (one Zebabula) he accused; which obliged him to seek protection in the fort; after which they remained quiet for some days, till they were informed, (no doubt by some French emissary) that Zebabula intended to leave the garison in the night, which so enraged them, that they assembled to the number of 700, and went in one body to the water side, firing their guns and making a terrible noise; and when challenged by the centry of one of the block houses, were bold enough to fire upon the soldiers but their fire being returned, two of the men were wounded, which intimidated them much and the sudden arrival of Col. Monkton, soon put an end to the whole affair.

They have taken all the Germans arms, and left them defenceless. Huffman is also taken and sent to Halifax; where, 'tis tho't, he will be amply satisfied, and may possibly meet a Hempen reward for his unwearied diligence and trouble, in endeavouring to promote the happiness of so new a settlement as Lunenburgh. The great numbers of the Germans are daily at work about Mahone-Bay, cutting hogshead and barrel staves, which they get in great plenty, and very convenient for water carriage to town.

CHARLES-TOWN, March 5.

Extract of a Letter from a Gentleman in Virginia, dated January 16th, 1754.

"Mr. Washington, the Ambassador sent to the Indian Country, is return'd, which affords us new Conversation. It is undoubtedly affirm'd for Truth, that the French have settled and fix'd several Forts near the Ohio Trade, especially one upon French-River, which Mr. Washington was at, and that proper Officers, and 500 Men are in each Fort, chiefly French; that they have 12 Cannon mounted on each of them, and great Numbers of French and Indians close at Hand to assist at a small Warning. Mr. Washington was received in a polite genteel Manner by the Commandant of the Fort, who read and answer'd our Governor's Letter, and at the same Time told Mr. Washington, that it was his Instruction from the King his Master, to keep Possession, and to advance further and fight those that should oppose him, &c. And added, that he had expected an Army to be sent, for 12 Months past, by the English, and that they were prepar'd for them for he suppos'd they must knock it out, and he did not care how soon. Mr. Washington is gone to Williamsburgh; and 'tis suppos'd the Assembly will meet immediately, and that Men will be raised, &c."

Wednesday last came an Account, by a Coaster, that a large Brigantine was lost upon Cape Romain.

The same Day arrived, His Majesty's Sloop Baltimore, commanded by Capt. Ellis, from Cape-Fear.

On Friday arrived here, in the Long-Boat and Yawl belonging to the Brigt. cast-away on Cape Romain, the Master and Crew of the Vessel: She was called the William, belonging to London and Bermuda, the Master's Name Thomas Duckworth, was bound from Providence for this Port, with a Cargo of Mahogany, Fustic, &c. struck on the Cape Sunday the 24th ult. about Noon, went down in 4 Hours after, &c.

since beat to Pieces; her Cargo entirely loft.

By Letters from Providence, we have an Account of two Sloops, belonging to New-London, (Ledgard and Hopkins Masters) being taken by a Guarda Costa, and carried into Cape-Francois.

Last Sunday se'nnight died, aged 76 Years, Capt. John Watson; who had resided in this Province almost constantly from the Third Year of his Age, with an unblemished Character: But a few Days before his Death, as was his Custom every Morning, he walk'd from his House to Market, above half a Mile; and enjoyed all his Senses to a surprising Degree for a Man of his Age in Carolina.
